

Punch Gunk partners with Orange County Triathlon to provide on-course pain relief

October 7, 2021

Athletes competing in Mission Viejo this weekend will find Punch Gunk at all event aid stations

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. – Punch Gunk, the award-winning performance therapeutics company shaking up the pain relief and workout recovery industry, has partnered with the Orange County Triathlon to provide natural pain relief for athletes on course. Punch Gunk's pain relieving lotion will be found at all aid stations throughout the route of the Olympic distance event, making the brand the official Topical Pain Relief Partner for the race.

"Triathletes are some of the toughest and most impressive athletes in the world. They know all about pain, but it's our goal to ensure they have less of it," said Cameron McIntyre, co-founder of Punch Gunk. "We're continuing to invest in and partner with the endurance sports community here in our home of Southern California, and we're grateful for this amazing opportunity to share the power of our products through a top-notch event like the OC Triathlon."

The Orange County Triathlon will take place on Sunday, Oct. 10 at Lake Mission Viejo. The event is a part of the OC Tri Series, which hosts both this event and the Pacific Coast Triathlon at Crystal Cove State Beach annually.

Punch Gunk was imagined, created, and is headquartered in Los Angeles, California. Well known in the mixed martial arts community, Punch Gunk's pain-relieving lotion and recovery bath bombs help athletes of all sports and abilities fight the toughest pain using natural extracts with exceptional anti-inflammatory and pain relief properties. They are FDA compliant and certified as safe by both the United States and World Anti-Doping Agencies.
